Meet & Eat for Global Treats

1. Choose a local restaurant. We are finding Latin American food to go with our Spanish Chatshows.
2. If possible, choose a lunch date or early dinner time during the week when business is slower. Confirm with the local restaurant a week or two before the date.
3. Text, email or call anyone that you would like to see for this lunch or dinner. Build a community. Post to social media if you feel comfortable.
4. Ask these friends to RSVP or text back with how many will join you with a deadline of about 4 days before the date. It is important to let the restaurant know how many.
5. Make a cheat sheet and text/email it to those that have sent an RSVP. This will help with ordering and delivering food to the tables. (See below)
   Your Global treat cheat sheet will contain:
   - Date/Time/ Address of Local Global Foods Restaurant
   - 3-5 recommended menu items (If possible, go try out the restaurant yourself and ask the local server for recommendations.) Add photos of the items.
   - How to say, "Good afternoon, Thank you, and Delicious" in the local language.
6. If you have more than 8 people ask the owner if you can do a special "sampler "platter with the most popular items. For example, at the Chilean restaurant we did a "Maestra Julia special" with 2 empanadas and 1 dessert alfajor cookie for $15. This special will make ordering and serving much easier and give everyone a chance to try some new items.
7. These tips have helped us to make this a smoother experience for all.
8. Enjoy and repeat often to support our global community.
